Medieval Ledesma

Historic-Artistic site since 1975

Ledesma, an old town located 35 km away from Salamanca and flanked by the Tormes river, sits 780m above sea level. It has had this natural position since the pre-Roman period.

Known in the old times as Bletisama, it has over 600,000 years of human presence.
